

STEEL-LINE OPENS THE DOOR TO MORE GROWTH

DATE: 21ST JUNE 2006

Roller and sectional door manufacturer Steel-Line Garage Doors has consolidated its operations into a new $6 million office and factory complex at Darra, which the company claims is Australia's largest purpose-built garage door factory.

Sales and marketing manager Margaret Kurzok says explosive growth both locally and abroad forced the company to abandon its multiple locations at Sumner Park.

Consolidating the business under the one roof, she adds, will reduce the company's handling costs and enable it to deliver better sales and service.

The 15000 sq m facility built on around 20240 sq m of land, allows for better access for pick-up and delivery and is equipped with overhead cranes, fully maintained kitchens in the office and factory, a sophisticated telecommunications system and 300 car parks.

Established in 1979, Steel-Line has 16 branches nationally and employs 260 people.
